To familiarise them with various issues of 'environment' a news letter 'Sulakshaya' is produced in which children also contribute by writing stories, poems, articles, slogans etc. To reach out to maximum number of children, from 1990 onwards a National Conference of Young, Environmentalists has been initiated. In this unique and meaningful conference, children from different parts of the country participate and discuss various issues related to the environment. It is not only related to their physical environment but also includes their social, emotional and cultural environment.

Inculcation of scientific temper is the main objective of science activities in National Bal Bhavan. The various sub-sections under the Science Section help children in learning scientific laws and principles. They are introduced to science in everyday life besides the physical/natural sciences. Its activities include Radio Electronics, Aero-Modelling, Machine Modelling, Astronomy, Computers, Aquarium and Animal Corner, How and Why Club and Environmental Activities as well as field trips, meeting with scientists. IBM has gifted two computer setups to the National Bal Bhavan. The software exclusively deals with making science easy and fun for children through interactive adventure games based on astronomy, marine life, biology and physics. Through these computers children can take a virtual tour of any science museum throughout the world. Moreover, they can also do virtual science experiments, post a postcard and many more activities. Any member of Bal Bhavan can try science in the Tryscience. Special film shows and camps are organized from time to time. To opt for science activity in Bal Bhavan a child need not be a science student at school. What is needed is only the curiosity to ask 'How' and 'Why' of things and keenness to learn. The following sub-sections work under the science section of National Bal Bhavan.

COMPUTERS

This activity is immensely popular and is attracting more and more children everyday. Children learn the basic computer language and they also learn to do programming. A large number of software on science subjects and computer games are available here to the children. The computer activity has started supplementing the school education. Bal Bhavan also provides information about internet so that children are aware of the latest technologies. Many meaningful and innovative workshops and symposia are the other attractions of this section.

AERO MODELLING

An expensive hobby like Aero Modeling is made accessible to the children of National Bal Bhavan. From learning the basics of aero dynamics to the making of models of planes of different varieties, children enjoy flying their model 'planes'. This activity is intended to encourage the children to cultivate an interest in aviation and joys of flying. This section also organizes model rocketry work shop.

RADIO AND ELECTRONICS

Membership in the Radio-Electronics Section is open to the children of 12 to 16 years age group. Basics of electricity, wiring, repairing of home appliances, new experiments with circuits, T.V. and Radio assembling are some of the activities of this section. Here children learn about the most complex circuits like, digital clock and new energy devices like solar power models. With the growing need of advanced communication in the world, more and more Radio Amateurs are taking to the HAM Radio Club. At Bal Bhavan we intend to start a club of Radio Amateurs so that children who join the club can pass the examination and establish a HAM Station at their home. By doing this, children of the world can come to each other and establish a better communication.

MACHINE MODELLING

In this Section children are exposed to the basic system and principles of machines and engineering. They learn by fabricating working models with cardboard. They make models of existing machines as well as invent models of machines which can be used in day to day life. This is a unique activity that introduces children to a world of machines and technology with cost effective and low cost experimentation.

ENVIRONMENT

The Environment Section has as its members, children who are concerned about the environment. The Harit Vahini Movement was launched by Sh. Rajiv Gandhi on 19th November, 1986. Harit Vahini or Children's Green Force is a part of Bal Bhavan's Environmental Programme. Some of the objectives of this movement are to create and inculcate in children love and care for nature and feeling of responsibility towards nature. Collections of seeds, nature's shows on environment, visit to natural history museum, zoo and tree plantations, environmental campaign are some of the activities of this section. Fifty two Bal Bhavan Kendras have been actively involved in spreading the environmental awareness message. The Environment Section organizes Environment Week Programme during which rallies, debates, plantations, cleaning project are under taken. National Conference for Young Environmentalists is also organized annually with different themes. The Environment Section also have resources like the parabolic solar cooker, box- type solar cooker, plant press, paper recycling unit etc. Children are encouraged to develop their own nature study material and can consult the section for suggestions, guidelines and for making environment-related models.

National Bal Bhavan has also begun its effort towards sustainability- A paper recycling unit produces handmade paper from waste paper generated in various sections, a rain water- harvesting system has been put up in the science park to raise the water level, a composting unit has been built in the nursery, a low-cost water filter has been installed near the canteen and a waste plastic weaving loom has been put up in the weaving section. The CEE and the DA have gifted these systems to National Bal Bhavan.

ASTRONOMY

The sky above holds an unsolved mystery about unknown galaxies. From time immemorial, man has been striving to unfold this secret. In Bal Bhavan, a low cost astronomical unit has been set up. The children enjoy this activity and they are curious to learn more about the sky above i.e., the planets and the stars.
